There's also a free version, which I believe is what you're looking for. In an email, go to "add attachment" and choose to attach an open document from your hard drive. This allows you to zip up or compress the document as a part of the body of the email, like this:
In vivo evaluation of different doses of gentamicin on the development of horizontal canal function in human. The aim of the study is to investigate the effect of different doses of gentamicin on horizontal semicircular canal function and how the doses relate to the gentamicin plasma concentrations. Canal function was assessed by measuring the spontaneous rotation of the head in response to linear acceleration. 5ec8ef588b
